HANGS SELF WITH BELT

Despondent over a lengthy illness, coupled with a lack of finance, led Andrew Holochock, aged 37 to commit suicide at his home at 39 Schoonmaker avenue, yesterday afternoon. The man had been in ill health for many months and being out of work he decided to end it all by hanging himself. He left the house which is in the basement of the building at 39 Schoonmaker avenu, and went to an outbuilding. A gas pipe was placed from one beam to another, and taking his belt he made a noose from which he hung himself.

His wife noticting his actions of late, feared that he would attempt to take his life and following him to the outbuilding shortly afterwards, found his body still warm hanging from the beam. He was quickly cut down and a physician called, but death has already relieved him of his worries. Deputy Coroner Day was notified and held an inquest. The remains were removed to the Wright undertaking rooms and prepared for burial. Funeral services will be held this afternoon with interment in the Grandview cemetery.

—Bids are asked on the construction of a new club building in Charleroi to be erected by Charleroi Aerie No. 390 Fraternal Order ofEagles. With the furnishings, the estimated cost will be $20,000. J. A. Lohman of this city, is the architect.

Baby Contest Becoming Interesting

One of the most novel advertising schemes that has thus far been introduced in Monessen is that now on by the E. G. Hays company in the Independent building, Sixth street.

This firm is offering absolutely free a $400 Lester piano to the baby getting the most votes. The contest closes Monday evening.

Contestants are out in earnest today and are more vigorous and earnest seemingly than the candidates contesting for lucrative offices. Cards have been printed at this office and are being passed around the town. People are standing on the street corners asking that their favorite baby be supported and before the close Monday night, it promises to be one of the most earnestly contested elections of this kind ever pulled off here. Everybody is getting interested. All that is necessary to vote is to give your street number and name the baby you wish to support.

The contest is under the personal direction of Mr. Charles H. Wilt, head salesman for the Hays company, and the object is purely for advertising the Lester piano.

—The Ladies Aid society of the English Lutheran church entertained last evening at the home of Mrs. A. Allison of Reed avenue. A brief but interesting program was rendered after which a lunch was served.

MONESSEN OLYMPIC

A wonderful Universal feature in four reels "Coral" a great artist who won the true love of a millionaire artist also. But after many thrilling scenes, but after being through fire and smoke of a great, wrecked and totally destroyed train, after a sea storm rescue and several other thrilling acts—it will more than please everyone. The next picture is the 17th chapter, in two acas of 'The Diamond from the Sky"—"The King of Diamonds and the Queen of Hearts." $10,000 for a suggestion for its successor. The next is one of L KO's very best comedies, "A Change in Lovers."

The next two coming weeks the Olympic will surprise the Monessen people with some wonderful productions. Watch for it. 1t

Police Court

But two prisoners faced Burgess Dunlap at the police court this morning and His Honor, who enjoyed a trip over the county yesterday in the interest of the local candidates, was so well pleased with the outlook that he promptly discharged both men.

Thomas Sharp of Pittsburgh, took on an overdose of booze and was seeing turkeys with boots on and monkeys with feathers when picked up by the police. Walter O'Brien, also of Pittsburgh, was given a sleep producing beverage and finally landed in the borough bastile.

Squire Watkins added two prisoners to the county jail yesterday when he sent Charles Darman and Charles Flenke to Greensburg. Darman is charged with carrying concealed weapons and Flenke will face a charge of assault and battery.

Darr for Sheriff

A. P. Darr of Cook township, is a candidate for Sheriff and is looming up strong. He is well known throughout the county as a man of fine executive ability and in his private and official life, an upright man. He is not unknown to the people of this county. He had charge of the county home where he made a reputation as being a careful and economical executive.

Mr. Darr may be depended on to bring the same honesty of purpose to bear in the office of sheriff, where he would doubtless make an enviable record. 1t

Steele For Commissioner

Tax Payers—Ben Steele has saved you over $16,000 in three and a half years as Sheriff. As County Commissioner, he will save you thousands of dollars. He is built that way, as the people of Irwin know best. A vote for him means you have done your share toward giving the county a business administration in the office of County Commissioners and that means much to those who foot the bills. 1t

Westmoreland Boy Wants a Pardon

The case of Ernest Reaping, the young Latrobe lad, convicted of murder in the first degree for the killing of Isah Wedge, was heard before the Board of Pardons yesterday at Harrisburg and a commutation of the death sentence recommended.

Attorneys James S. Beacom and James B. Weaver, who were appointed by the court to defend the young man, made an earnest plea to have the sentence commuted from death in the electric chair to that of life imprisonment. A petition asking for commutation signed by scores of residents of Westmoreland county, particularly in the vicinity of Latrobe was presented to the board for consideration. The Board of Pardons also pardoned Steve Lagnay of this county, convicted of voluntary manslaughter, and refused Milton Wright a pardon on a charge of arson.

Concert

Mr. F. C. Carter, a student of the Storey University at Harper's Ferry, W. Va., will give a concert at the Star theatre, Sunday afternoon, September 26, at which time he will give his famous address on "The Limitless Possibilities of the Negro Race." Piano, violin, mandolin and vocal solos will also be a feature of the program and among the artists who will take part are Harry Brooks, William Taylor, Lelia Simmons, Richard Ferguson, Miss Neoma Ross, Perry Simmons and Francis Ferguson.

WILL PROBATED

The will of the late David H. Logan a retired farmer of Butler county, who died on September 11 in the Allegheny General hospital, Pittsburgh, Pa., three days after he had married Mrs. Florence Sowders of 1705 Buena Vista street, Pittsburgh, was probated today. Mr. Logan leaves several small bequests and the residue of his estate, amounting to about $13,000 is given to his wife during her life time and at her death to be divided among Mr. Logan's children by a former wife, now dead. Mrs. Logan is named the sole executrix. Mr. Logan was about to undergo an operation and fearing he would not survive it, summoned his fiancee to his bedside, where they were married by the Rev. Dr. A. J. Turkle, pastor of the Trinity Lutheran church, Pittsburgh. Immediately after the ceremony, Mr. Logan made his will.

New Moose Home Fine Structure

Splendid in every particular and a lodge home of excellent arrangement is the new $30,000 Moose temple, the latest addition to Charleroi's list of club houses. Well located on McKean avenue, near Seventh street, the edifice is one that adds considerably to the appearance of that section of the town.

The front of the new temple is naturally a most attractive part, with its two large porches and the four large supporting columns. Those porches with the tall, beautiful columns and the architectural beauty of the front of the temple set it off wonderfully well.

To the right as one enters the temple is a reception room and to the left a card and reception room. In the rear is the large square lodge room finely fitted and arranged with a large seating capacity.

On the second floor are the ladies' sitting room and the library. Sufficient storage rooms and toilet accessories are provided. On the basement floor is located the game room and social room. The entire building is handsomely furnished.

The new Moose home is the third of the kind in Charleroi, the B. P. O. Elks and the Turn Verein having preceded the Moose in the building line. The Fraternal Order of Eagles is planning to begin the erection shortly of a new club house on McKean avenue.

—Mrs. Bissiere was a Donora caller today.

BASKET BALL OUTLOOK

If matters work out as it is expected they will, the winter months will see some good sport in the basket ball line in the towns and cities along the Monongahela valley.

At a recent consultation between several young men who are lovers of the sport, initiative steps were taken to organize a valley league. Among the promoters of the league, we find Capt. Edward Hartland of Co. A. N. G. P. of Monongahela, Edward Steinman, Jr, and Chris Dreyer of Fayette City, David Barnum of Allenport and others who are equally as enthusiastic over the venture.

Fayette City has a very good hall there in which games may be played and while not so large as some others will answer the purpose very well. Allenport has a good hall also, while the Monongahela games will be played on the drill room of the State armory. Charleroi can well take care of their end of it in that line and some of the other towns are also well fixed for floor space.

A meeting in the near future will develop fully as to what towns will be represented in the new league.

The Slanderous Circular

The scavengers of literature are abroad in the name of fraternity and the church. They are in every campaign with literature that is a disgrace to decency. It is intended to direct a man's feelings against his neighbor because of religious beliefs when the constitution under which we are living gives every man a right to worship as he pleases. In the name of the church, this band of slanderers attempt to destroy character, the most sacred thing upon this earth.

It takes a life time to mould character, but it takes only a short time to destroy it. A candidate deserves every consideration at the hands of the people, no difference what his religious beliefs are He is a citizen, a tax payer, maybe a kind husband and loving father, and he may have the best of morals, and before entering a campaign he no doubt thinks no man would dare say a thing to harm him. He believes according to his conscience and his code of morals that he has lived an ideal life.

But the appearance of the circular tells a different story. It shows him up in a different light. It paints him unfit to hold public office or forewarns the voters that he cannot win or that he belongs not to the same organizations or church that the circularizing clique would have him belong, hence he is unfit.

Voters should not be influenced to support a man because he is affiliated with certain churches or societies. The test of a man's fitness for office is his qualifications for the office. A man may be a good lodge officer and at the same time be out of place in a public office of trust. It is unfortunate that these circulars appear and more often they injure a candidate than benefit him and no one's name should be placed thereon unless permission is given. A number of candidates deny that they permitted their names to be used in this way.

Comforting Words

Many a Monessen Household Will Find Them So

To have the pains and aches of a bad back removed—to be entirely free from anoying, dangerous urinary disorders, is enough to make any kidney sufferer grateful. The following advice of one who has suffered will prove comforting words to hundreds of Monessen readers:

Mrs. Ida Coleman, 311 Sixth street, Monessen, says: "I was troubled by a constant backache and in the morning especially when I stooped to put on my shoes, I found it hard to straighten. Sharp pains took my breath away. I felt tired all the time and had dizzy spells and hot flashes My head ached. I doctored for a long time but didn't get much good and finally I used Doan's Kidney Pills, which I got at Kirk's Drug store. They gave me great relief and after I had taken the second box. the trouble disappeared. I haven't had any cause for complaint since. Others of the family are now using Doan's Kidney Pills and consider them the best kidney medicine on the market."

Price 50c at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Coleman had. Foster-Mifburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

CHAPTER XL.

The Escape.

The grind of the wheels under the brakes had hardly ceased when a high official of the court of Grahoffen sprang aboard the train, looking this way and that expectantly, peering through the windows and doors of coach after coach. But he did not find the man he sought. Hurrying through the last car of the train, at last he half-stumbled over the limp form of Bartel lying on the floor where Roleau's arm had flung him, neck and crop.

"Quick here!" he called out. "Here's murder—but by whom? Where have they got to? After them, men!"

But now some sort of answer to their questioning came in a shout from the station platform. Someone was pointing beyond the train up the mountainside. The official sprang forward.

"After them, men! They must have done this," cried he. "They have what we seek"

A band of mounted men an instant later rode out of the station in full pursuit of the fugitives They raced down the road, toward a bridge which spanned the stream ahead.

"Look yonder, excellency!" exclaimed Roleau at length, as he turned and faced down the slope to gaze at these pursuers. "They will cut us off on ahead Look—they are riding for the bridge."

He looked this way and that, as the three paused uncertain At last his eyes fell upon a vast bowlder that lay near by the edge of the ridge upon which they stood. He cast a swift glance below, lining up the course of the bowlder straight down to the bridge below. Bracing himself, he threw his shoulders against the bowlder, exercising every ounce of his own prodigious strength.

The advancing soldiery heard the roar of the coming stone, saw how imminent was the danger from it, but some of the riders were already at the bridge itself as it struck. It crashed through the timbers as if they had been straw. What had been the bridge was a ruin Horses, riders—all were carried down into the stream below.

"Come, now," cried Kitty's companion to her once more as they saw the pursuit arrested. "On ahead there may be a better place—we may yet get through if we hasten"

At length, well-nigh spent, they flung themselves down in this place of greater security Far below they could see mounted men still coming

Count Frederick and Roleau made such silent answer as they could. Each drew his weapon and prepared it for what might next ensue

"We can hold them for a little time," said Count Frederick, judicially

"But we must not lose—our cause is too good to be lost!" exclaimed Kitty "I will not yield to fate—I will not give up! If I myself could escape perhaps I could get to Gretzhoffen at last and bring back help for you, if you could wait long enough"

"It is a good plan," said Count Frederick, suddenly "There is danger in it, but not so much for you as for either of us. You are good on your feet, mademoiselle — what shall I say—?"

But Kitty had made her own resolve Roleau extended his hand to her. She took the coin into her possession, unseen by Frederick. A moment later she was speeding away, crouching, attempting to cut in ahead of the mounted men below.

CHAPTER XLI.

King Michael to the Rescue.

In Gretzhoffen capital matters had gone ill enough this day. The populace was on edge with excitement over the mysterious murder

The prefect of police was furious over the results of the day's work. He knew that for some time he had been under the king's suspicion for laxness in the administration of his office and felt that it was time to make some example, to produce some proof of his own vigilance.

"You, Anselm, you Du Brock," he ordered two of his most trusted men—"go out—find these people—we must have them in our own hands. Turn night into day and day into night until you have them once more. The girl is with them—be sure of that—find her and you will find Roleau, the answer to all these riddles."

These members of his staff, thus adjured, made their way out, none too happy at the task assigned them, for they knew well enough that now they were to cope with active brains and active bodies. Learning that the escape of the accused had been made by the railway train, for a time they hung about the station in search of further news. They spent some hours there—but departed just too soon to welcome the return of one of the fugitives they sought—none less than Kitty Gray herself!

Safe from immediate pursuit, Kitty paused for a little rest and a little food. What should she do? For a time she was undecided, but presently her resolution was made

"I will try it," said she to herself "I will go to the palace direct I will see if I can get access to the king!"

And thither, forsooth, she did turn her way.

Rank by rank of the guard she passed by this way or that, wheedling them, threatening them, bribing them, until she found herself within the doors of the palace

"Mademoiselle, again!" exclaimed King Michael "Welcome, then." His mottled face did indeed express gratification at seeing her once more

Kitty first made apology for her disordered apparel. "I ask your majesty's pardon," said she, "for my plight I am sure of my welcome only because of the news I bring—I am from the front—the war!"

"The front—the war—mademoiselle, what do you mean? What war? We are not at war!" But even as he spoke the blood shrank back from his face.

"There is war, your majesty, if I may say it," rejoined the young girl "Yonder at the edge of the neutral lands, this side of Grahoffen, men are fighting. Their army is out—they have besieged our people"

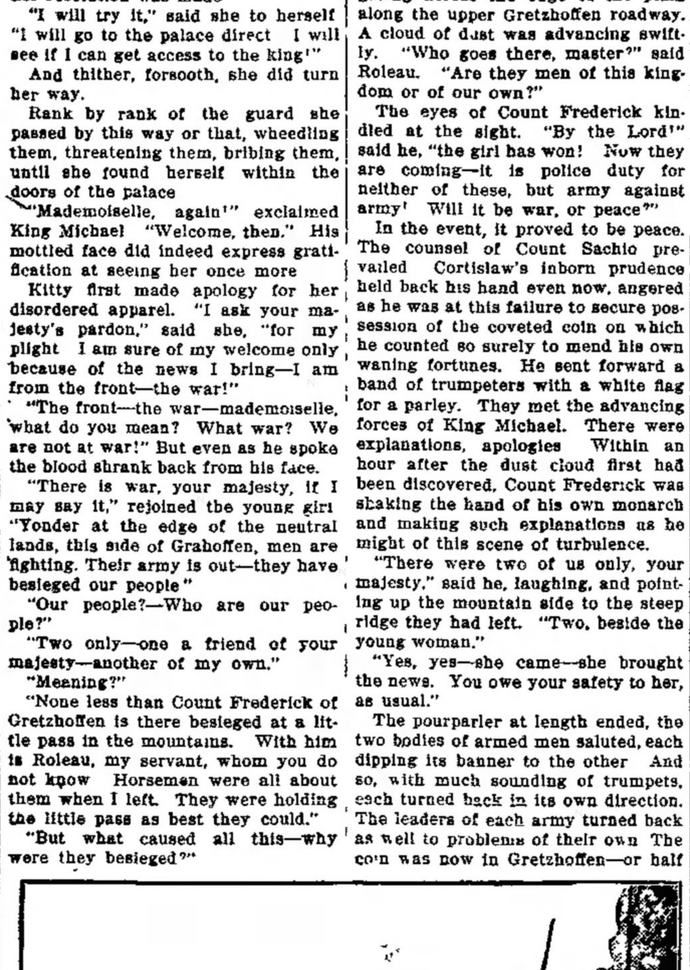
"Our people?—Who are our people?"

"Two only—one a friend of your majesty—another of my own."

"Meaning?"

"None less than Count Frederick of Gretzhoffen is there besieged at a little pass in the mountains. With him is Roleau, my servant, whom you do not know Horsemen were all about them when I left. They were holding the little pass as best they could."

"But what caused all this—why were they besieged?"



A Band of Mounted Men an Instant Later Rode Out in Full Pursuit.

"Your majesty, it is because they want what belongs here in Gretzhoffen—they covet the Gretzhoffen coin"

"The coin? What coin? Impossible: I have it myself—at least a half of it, mademoiselle."

"You—your majesty—how can that be? For see, I myself have it—I fled with it to get safety for it"

King Michael's wits were not quick enough to meet this sudden demand upon them.

"It travels, that coin—I would not believe that you could have it. So now they think he has it and have coveted it? Shall yonder ruffian Cortislaw take from us that which is ours? No, mademoiselle, you are right! You are a faithful messenger to bring us this news. Listen, I myself will go to the rescue!"

"Your majesty speaks as a king," said Kitty Gray.

Pompously, the less rapid for his avoirdupois, King Michael turned now to the halls

"Call out the guard!" he commanded. "Sound the bugles now and bring me my officers here. Quick, equip me, you men—we must ride—the troops must form"

The word passed quickly Within the half hour trim hoofs rang on the pavements of Gretzhoffen avenue as the guard, their sovereign at their head, rode out at speed.

Left in the care of one of the household women, Kitty was shown to a room of her own, where she might the better arrange her apparel and dispose herself for rest. She did not know anything of Sachio's presence in the palace—indeed, Michael himself had not been aware of that; but that crafty individual, readily enough learning what was meant by all this excitement, himself sped away from the palace even before the guard was out.

On the mountain side where they had been left, Count Frederick and Roleau, once master and man, now partners elbow to elbow in a common cause, lay and looked down.

As they looked, they saw the advance of the troops below them halted. Why was this?

"Surely," chuckled Roleau unconcerned, "we have beaten their whole army, the two of us! Are they no braver than that, these men of Grahoffen!"

"Something has happened below there," rejoined Count Frederick. "We could not hold out against their forces, and it is not fear that has halted them.

They turned in the other direction, gazing across the edge of the plain along the upper Gretzhoffen roadway. A cloud of dust was advancing swiftly. "Who goes there, master?" said Roleau. "Are they men of this kingdom or of our own?"

The eyes of Count Frederick kindled at the sight. "By the Lord!" said he, "the girl has won! Now they are coming—it is police duty for neither of these, but army against army! Will it be war, or peace?"

In the event, it proved to be peace. The counsel of Count Sachio prevailed Cortislaw's inborn prudence held back his hand even now, angered as he was at this failure to secure possession of the coveted coin on which he counted so surely to mend his own waning fortunes. He sent forward a band of trumpeters with a white flag for a parley. They met the advancing forces of King Michael. There were explanations, apologies Within an hour after the dust cloud first had been discovered, Count Frederick was shaking the hand of his own monarch and making such explanations as he might of this scene of turbulence.

"There were two of us only, your majesty," said he, laughing, and pointing up the mountain side to the steep ridge they had left. "Two, beside the young woman."

"Yes, yes—she came—she brought the news. You owe your safety to her, as usual."

The pourparler at length ended, the two bodies of armed men saluted, each dipping its banner to the other And so, with much sounding of trumpets, each turned back in its own direction. The leaders of each army turned back as well to problems of their own The coin was now in Gretzhoffen—or half of it at least. Precisely as much could be said for Grahoffen The old king, Cortislaw, was shaking in his wrath and humiliation that he had but half the coin.

Jewish Holiday

The Day of Atonement services began in Monessen last evening among the local Hebrews. Services were held at the synagague on Schoonmaker avenue last evening. This is the day for inner peace and accordingly, the Jews re-assert their loyalty to peace for themselves and for mankind. By the assertion of the better self, they broaden into good will for fellowmen. The initial services were held last evening and today until six o'clock services will be held. The ritual of the day is public and congregational; but its significance is personal.

—The Y. L. H. A. of the Monongahela valley are arranging to hold first of a series of fall and winter dances in the Might auditorium, at Charleroi, October 5.

—While in the act of picking peaches from a tree in the back yard of his home on Reed avenue, E. A. Wells was thrown to the ground and so seriously injured that he will be confined to his home for several days.
—Frank Lane and Miss Regina Conway are in Pittsburgh this afternoon attending the ball game.

—Mrs. George Sherwin, Mrs. McCarnas and Mrs. Nine returned from an automobile trip to Braddock, McKeesport and Pittsburgh. The trip was made in the automobile of John Sherwin of McKeesport.

—Mrs. J. C. Morgart of Schoonmaker avenue, has returned home from the Memorial hospital in Monongahela, following an operation for a tumor under her left ear. Dr. Hoon and Dr. Billick performed the operation.

JOHN S. SELL

John S. Sell is a candidate for re-election for County Controller on the Republican ticket. His platform is his record in conducting the fiscal affairs of the county, bringing to bear efficiency of the highest order.

His aim is to pay all of the legitimate debts of the county and get the last penny coming to it. This was shown when not so long ago he recovered $5,900.00 from the state which had been overpaid previous to his assuming the duties of County Controller.

Mr. Sell has been conducting the office on a strictly business policy and during his term there has been no costly litigation put on the taxpayers that formerly run into many thousands of dollars.—Irwin Republican Standard. 1t

AN OPEN LETTER

Greensburg, Pa., Sept. 15, 1915.

To the Taxpayer:—

The history of the office of County Controller in Westmoreland county shows that each County Controller in Westmoreland county has succeeded himself.

I have served as your Controller,,in other words, as the county's bookkeeper, during the current term, and I take pleasure in stating to you:—

That the running expense of the office during the current term has been less than that of any term in its history.

That by reason of constant watchfulness, ordinary common sense and the exercise of business methods, costly litigation, which, prior to the present administration, cost the taxpayers many thousands of dollars has been avoided.

There have been no unnecessary and expensive delays in the transaction of any of the county's business, each transaction having been cleared and closed up within the shortest possible time after reaching this office.

It is the imperative duty of the County Controller to see that every debt owing by the county is paid, also to see that all money due the county is paid to the County Treasurer. During the current term not a single dollar of the county's money has been paid out unless the same was for a duly authorized, properly contracted and collectable obligation of the county, and all money and taxes due the county have been collected or are in process of collection. Included in this is an item of almost $6,000 recovered for the county, which has been improperly paid out during a former administration. (See Controller's Report for 1914, page 34.)

At the commencement of the present administration, your County Controller found the county without a dollar set aside for a Sinking Fund. The maintenance of a Sinking Fund to meet the county's funded or bonded indebtedness is a positive and absolute duty of the Board of County Commissioner,s and it is the duty of the County Controller to see that a proper Sinking Fund is set aside and maintained. I take pleasure, as your fiscal agent, in saying that during my administration, this requirement has been strictly adhered to, and that there is now the required legal amount in the Sinking Fund, namely, about $225,000.00, wihch amount is separate from other county money and is legally invested and ready to meet the series of County Bonds next coming due.

The business affairs of the county are your business, and the books of the County Controller's office are your books, and my record in the conduct of the fiscal affairs of Westmoreland county is open for inspection. Upon this I respectfully solicit your influence and support.

My opponent and myself are both Greensburg bankers and own farms in Hempfield township.

Yours truly,
John S. Sell.
